McIntosh Celebrate First Anniversary at New Lenox Sun.

A demonstration of scientific poultry raising methods was given by Arthur T. McIntosh & Co., at their New Lenox estates poultry community Sunday which was the first anniversary of the opening of this property, now virtually sold out. The development is on the outskirts of New Lenox, which is on the Lincoln highway six miles west of Kean avenue.

Among the subjects which were explained to visitors was, feeding for egg production, treatment of common poultry ailments, housing, egg marketing and feed buying. A big picnic was also held for visitors to the anniversary celebration, features of which were refreshments and prizes, among them a poultry homestead.

The New Lenox estates poultry community, which a year ago was undeveloped farm land, comprises 400 acres within walking distance of the New Lenox station on the Rock Island. This property is today equipped with gas mains, water mains, electric light and crushed stone paving, all of which was installed and paid for by the McIntosh Company.

The development, on whose northern boundary stands the New Lenox grade school, has now 65 homes and a total population of 260 persons. On each of the occupied homesteads is a scientifically designed poultry establishment.

Some members of the community derive their entire income from their poultry, while others depend upon their chickens to augment their earnings from work in Chicago, Joliet, Chicago Heights or other nearby labor markets.

Eggs produced by the poultry raisers are marketed by the McIntosh organization, while feed is purchased in ton lots and furnished the chicken owner at prices considerably below retail.

Tinley Park Garden Club Notes By T. N. S.

In Sugar Time
There's a cloud wreath on Killington's summit;
There's a rose-colored flush on the hills;
There's a touch in the breath of the morning
That stirs and awakens and thrills,
There's a shout from the heart of spring.
And the bird in your soul wakes to answer
When you hear the first sugar-bird sing.

—Blanche Dunham Hubbard.
The last meeting of the Garden club was held at the home of Mrs. Clara Goessel, with Mrs. Betty Berg as hostess. Although there were not present the usual number of members, this meeting was one of the most interesting of the season from a social standpoint. The report of the Junior Garden Club Flower Show was read by our president, Mrs. R. J. Hug, the same having been submitted by the flower show chairman, Mrs. Alice Anderson. Plans were made for a Gipsy Tea, which will be held on October First. More information in regards to this affair will be published in another issue of this paper. Little Miss Beverly Berg and Master Lyle Mancke gave a very interesting "Movie" which was more than enjoyed by all the ladies. Mrs. Berg served delicious home made cake and orange-ade. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. John Swisher the 3rd Friday afternoon in September. Do you know the mountain ash tree growing in the third time this season, the berries from the first bloom being on the tree at the same time? This is very unusual.

The Men's Flower Show is being held at the Garfield Park Conservatory Saturday and Sunday, August 29th at 3:00 P. M. No charge for admittance.

Dianthus Beatrix

Garden Clubs that are interested in a novel idea may exhibit to their members a blooming plant of that beautiful new hardy garden pink, Dianthus Beatrix, through the interest of Swinson Brothers, at Gloucester, Massachusetts. This concern will gladly send a blooming plant without charge to interested Garden Clubs. The flowers are double, of light salmon pink, borne in generous clusters and with fine keeping quality. Write to the Bulletin Guild if your Garden Club would like a plant of Dianthus Beatrix.

The Rose Chapter Garden Notes By Mrs. H. D. Robbins, Publicity Chairman

Mrs. Chas. Deever was surprised on August 12th by the Rose Chapter Garden Club with a baby shower at the home of Mrs. Klevens. She received many wonderful gifts. Mrs. Klevens entertained the Rose Chapter members and friends at her home on Aug. 17th in honor of the new baby born to Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Miller in Elmore's south

Hold Beagley Family Reunion

The seventh annual Beagley reunion was held August 9th, 1931 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Lyons at Mt. Airy, Indiana. Eighty-six gathered at this reunion. A short business meeting was held and a new corp of officers elected as follows: President, Raymond Beagley of Orland, Ill.; Vice-president, Bruce Beagley of Brook, Indiana, Secy-Treas., Mrs. Bruce Beagley, of Brook, Indiana.

"LINES TO THE BEAGLEY REUNION"

Come one, Come all and listen while I tell,
The story of the Beagley Reunion of whom you all know well.
Eighty-six gathered at this Grand affair.

You missed a good time if you were not there.

The tables were spread with good things to eat.

We all did justice to the wonderful feast.

Our President, Raymond Beagley of Orland, Ill., was there.

He sure knew how to handle this affair.

The meeting was opened and minutes were read.

A new corp of officers were there elected.

Mrs. Sarah Hays and Mrs. Thorp Beagley were there.

They have always attended these affairs.

A rising vote of thanks was extended to Mr. and Mrs. Lyons.

For the use of their home and lawn and for the wonderful time.

Games were played and races were run.

Orland, Illinois donating the prizes won.

This is all I have to say, I better quit I guess.

It was a wonderful reunion, and one of the best.

Mokena To Draft New License Ordinance

At the meeting of the Mokena village board Wednesday night, it was discovered that the peddler license ordinance of the village does not cover peddling by automobile.

The board had received an application for a yearly license from Mr. Koehler, driving a truck for the Tinley Park bakery, but the board discovered it could not issue such a license as the present ordinance only is for licenses to be issued to peddlers on foot or with horse and wagon or cart. The board has asked Howard Schlutz, the village attorney to draw up a new ordinance so that licenses can be issued for peddlers using automobiles.

New Brick School Being Erected

The school house which was destroyed by fire sometime ago in the Schuyl district in New Lenox town ship is being replaced by a fine new brick school building at an estimated cost of about $6500. The school of the one room type, will have a basement and furnace heat. The building will be finished about October first according to present plans. Henry Breidert of Frankfort is the contractor.

Fruit and Vegetables Wanted by Hospital

Dr. W. R. Schussler who is connected with the Burnside hospital advises that the hospital stands ready to receive or buy fruits and garden vegetables of all kinds. Contributions for the poor of Chicago will also be gladly received. Anyone in this section having fruit or vegetables to sell or donate kindly get in touch with Dr. Schussler at Orland Park.

Tinley Legionnaires Go to Peoria

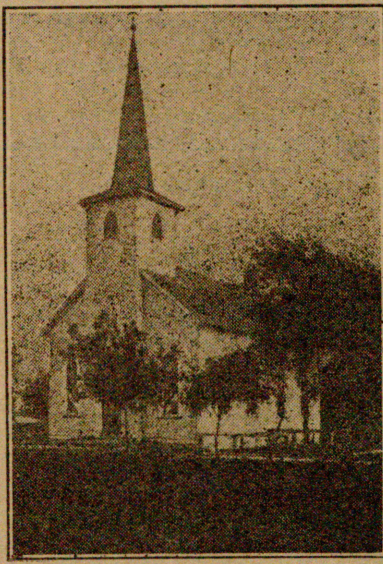

The following Tinley Park Legionnaires will attend the American Legion Convention at Peoria next week: James Berry, Walter Mancke, Charles Wallin and Frank Hoar. They will leave for Peoria Sunday night.

subdivision. Many nice gifts were showered on the new baby. Bunco was played. The first prize going to Mrs. Towle, Mrs. West, second, Mrs. Deever, third and Mrs. Johnson, booby prize. Coffee and cake were served.

The Rose Chapter Garden Club took advantage of the wonderful weather and entertained a number of friends in the forest preserve on August 20th. Lunch with hot coffee was spread to a party of thirty. Games were played and prizes were given to the youngsters, as well as the grown-ups. A good time was had by all. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Shultz.

Tinley Luth. Church Is Going to Celebrate 50th Anniversary

The beginning of the Zion church dates back to 1872 or 1873, when neighboring pastors conducted services in that building, which even to this day serves as a school house. Pastor Deichmann had charge of the little congregation until 1881, when Pastor Wetzel became his successor. The organization of Zion took place in the same year. The following year Mr. H. Vogt erected a house for the pastor and his family, which a few years later was purchased by the congregation to serve as a parsonage. When Pastor Wetzel resigned, Pastor A. C. Krebs was called. He took charge in October 1882 and for eleven years labored successfully.

In the beginning of 1884 the congregation began planning a new church. The corner-stone was laid in May of the same year and the dedication took place in October.

When Pastor Krebs accepted a call to Krumway, Ill., Pastor A. Biedermann was called. He left after five years. Pastor Fandrey and Pastor Mack supplied the pulpit of Zion church, until Pastor E. Lehmann came. When three years later he accepted a call to Fontanelle, Iowa, the present pastor, Albert Buddenhagen was called. Under his leadership many things have been accomplished. The old parsonage was remodeled, the interior of the church decorated, a new altar and pipe organ purchased, and a new parsonage built.

Unlike other congregations, this congregation never had a really serious language problem. The first English service was conducted August 31, 1913.

Realizing that English must be used, the congregation ordered the first and third Sunday of each month to be set aside for English service, all others for the German. There are not many charter members of the congregation left. Those still living are: Mr. H. Vogt, Mr. Jacob Funk and Mr. John Hollstein.

Almost since the organization of Zion congregation, the Sunday school has continued, without interruption, to the present day.

The Ladies Aid was organized about twenty years ago. Without the efforts of this organization Zion would not be what it is, nor have what it has today.

Zion church today numbers 305 communicant members, souls 387.

The Church council consists of the following: Elders: Mr. A. Mesenbrink, Mr. Henry Henke and Mr. Charles Niemann. Trustees: Mr. Fred Hick, Mr. William Koehler, Mr. William Mohr (Treasurer) and Mr. William Stockman (Secretary).

In the 50 years of Zion's existence the following official ministerial acts were performed:

Weddings, 123; Baptisms, 485; Confirmation, 415; Funerals, 236. The Lord's Supper was administered to 12,522 guests.

Former German Editor Dies at Orland

Adolph Flondor, aged fifty-six years, former associate editor of the German daily "The Abendpost" of Chicago, died August 24th at his home on 143rd and Woodland ave., in Orland Park. He was a member of the Roosevelt Masonic lodge of Chicago and a number of German societies. He is survived by his widow, Hermine Flondor, one son George, two brothers, John, Chicago Emil and one sister Stephanie Tarnowski in Europe.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon from the late home at two o'clock with burial in Archer Woods cemetery.

New Tinley School Addition Opens Sept. 15

The new addition to the Tinley Park public school will be ready for use by September 15th according to present plans. The old part of the school will be used when the school opens, Tuesday, September 8th.

Mokena Flower Show Big Success

The spacious auditorium of the Mokena public school was transformed into a veritable flower garden when the Mokena Garden Club and its junior units held their first annual flower show, Tuesday afternoon and evening.

Despite the dry and hot summer, the floral array was very pretty, in fact the show was characterized "as an outstanding one" by a representative of the Vaughn Seed Co., who also had an exhibit at the show.

There were 850 entries of various kinds of which 250 entries were made by the junior units of the Garden Club.

Many blue ribbons were awarded. A complete and comprehensive list of all the prize winners will be published next week.

A very pretty feature of the show was a layout representing a country village with miniature roads, bridges, railroads, etc., together with houses, churches, etc. The layout bordered with a stone wall and flowers, was labeled "Mokena", the work of the Lilac Garden Unit.

There was a lovely background consisting of a pool with flowers and vegetation. A stuffed bird mounted on a log surveyed the pretty scene.

There was an excellent attendance both afternoon and evening, a large number of visitors from the neighboring communities attending.

The Mokena Garden Club officers and members and their Junior Units are to be congratulated on the excellence of their show and the fine success which it was.

Frankfort Man Held Up on Mokena Rd.

Emil Tewes of Frankfort was held up Sunday night at 1:30 o'clock at the junction of the Wolf road and the Lincoln highway south of Mokena by five men in a Buick car. They took $15 in cash and a wrist watch from Mr. Tewes. No trace has been found of them.

Pledge S. W. Highway Support

Dr. W. R. Schussler of Orland Park, president of the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce is in receipt of the following letter from County Commissioner Grace Fleming relative to the Southwest Highway and its completion:
My dear Dr. Schussler:

I want to take this occasion to express my admiration for the marvelous manner in which the Southwest Highway Chamber of Commerce has perfected its organization throughout the State in the interest of that great road.

Please be assured of my deep interest in the project and my determination to help in every way to bring all plans involved to fulfillment.

May I also take this occasion to express the enjoyment I experienced in meeting so many of my fellow citizens, not only of Cook County, but of the counties through which the highway runs.

Please convey to the women of Essex my sincere appreciation of the fine part they took in making the meeting the splendid success it was.

May I add one word of congratulation on the fine public spirit manifested in the devotion with which this great project is being carried on and the acclaim which will justly follow when the achievement has been accomplished.

Cowan Says Francis Favors Wolf Road Completion

Edward Cowan of Palos Park who is much interested in the road construction program of Cook and Will Counties, advises that Fred Francis chairman of the Will County Bond Issue Committee is much in favor of the early completion of the Wolf road with the Lincoln highway to the south of Mokena.

New Lenox Lions Attend Plainfield Meet

A number of Lions from Plainfield attended the meeting of the New Lenox Lions Club last Thursday and invited them to attend a meeting at Plainfield on August 27th for the purpose of organizing a Will County Council of Lions Clubs.

Old Time Dance at Mokena Labor Day

The feature of the Mokena Men's Club Labor Day dance will be an old time dance. An old time orchestra will furnish the music.

OLD TIME DANCE AT FRANKFORT SATURDAY

An old time dance will be held at the Frankfort grove on Saturday evening of this week.

Orland Parade To Be Labor Day Event

All roads will lead to Orland Park on Labor Day, Monday Sept. 7th when the Orland Park Volunteer Fire Department will stage a huge parade on 143rd street followed by a big picnic in the forest preserve on 143rd street in the village of Orland Park. The parade starts promptly at two o'clock daylight saving time. There will be band music and decorated floats galore.

A great big feature which will be the cause of much merriment will be the catching of a greased pig. Whoever can hold on to the slippery porker can have him say the firm.

There will be all kinds of games some of which have never been seen here before. In the evening, will be dancing with Chuck Formento and his orchestra.

For the time of your life come and bring your friends to Orland on Labor Day.

New Royal Blue Store Opens at Orland

J. F. Schmadeke, well known Orland Park postmaster and merchant has joined the Royal Blue store organization and has had the interior of his store remodeled and has put in a line of the famous Blue Store quality groceries which will be on sale every week at big saving prices which will help greatly to reduce the high cost of living.

Mr. Schmadeke will have his opening sale Friday and Saturday of this week. Read his big advertisement on the back page of this issue and take advantage of the many specials offered. Many of the specials are on sale for an entire week. The Blue Store organization helps the local merchants to compete with the chain stores by being able to sell quality stock at chain store prices.

NOTICE

Bids will be received by the Village Board of Orland Park to haul and dispose all rubbish and tin cans in the village of Orland Park, bids to be in before Sept. 14, 1931. The Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

H. ADELE COOPER,
Village Clerk.

Price of Dance Tickets Cut at Tinley Park

The prices of dance tickets are being cut to meet the cuts in other lines. A dance will be held at the Saenger hall in Tinley Park on Labor Day and the price of the tickets has been cut to 25c a couple. Ossie's Californians will furnish the music.

Suggests Repeal of Ordinance

That villages are laying themselves liable if they issue licenses to soft drink parlors, was pointed out by Howard Schlutz, Mokena village attorney at the council meeting. He stated that as most soft drink parlors sell booze, it would be just too bad if federal men should raid a soft drink licensed by the village. Mokena has a soft drink parlor license calling for $50 a year and Attorney Schlutz advised the board that this license is dangerous and should be repealed.

You may have wondered for a long time just where this coveted door is located. You will be surprised to learn that it is virtually in your own back yard. Many Attend Last Rites of James Moss

A number of Tinley Park people attended the funeral of James Moss widely known Bremen township resident held in Blue Island last Friday from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clara Jebsen at 2337 Olive St. Rev. A. F. Clark of Oak Park officiated. Interment was in the Mount Hope cemetery.

James Moss was born at Goesselville August 9, 1857. He passed away at the home of his daughter Mrs. E. Jebsen, 2337 Olive St., Blue Island, August 18th at the age of 74 years and 9 days. When he was 8 years old, he lost his mother (nee Anna Turney). After living about Blue Island until 1877 he migrated to Kinsley, Kan., taking up a claim. In 1878 he was united in marriage to Minnie Troeger, also of Kansas. To this union 5 children were born, 3 daughters Mrs. Clara Jebsen, Mrs. Florence Konsoer, Mrs. Pearl Fulton and two sons, Edward and Herbert Moss.

In the spring of 1889 the family moved to Illinois. He retired from active service in 1919. On Nov. 5th, 1928 they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. He leaves to mourn his death, his widow, five children, and 8 grand children, 2 brothers, R. E. Moss of Chicago and Asa Moss of Almyra, Ark., and a host of relatives and friends.

Mokena Board Passes Tax Levy

The Mokena village board at their session Wednesday night passed the annual tax levy ordinance bill which calls for the levying of $3675 in taxes for the expense of running the village government for the ensuing year. The ordinance in question is printed on the back page of this issue.

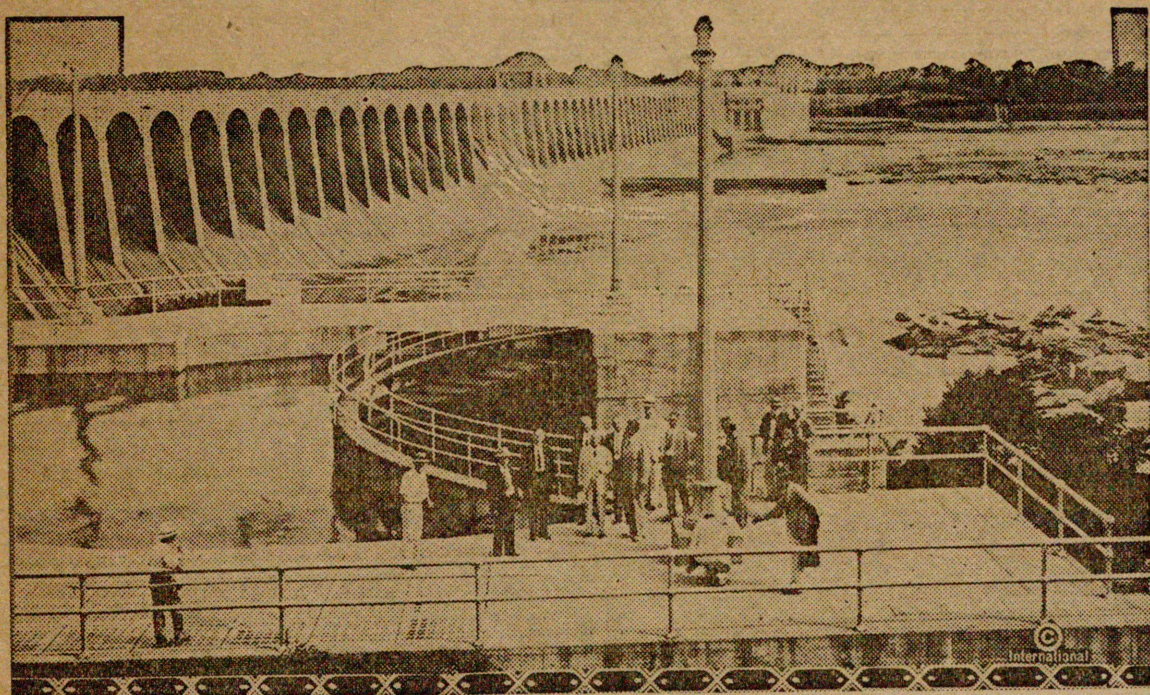

Mokena-Tinley Game Draws Crowd

The largest crowd in several years to attend a baseball game in Tinley Park, were on hand last Sunday when Tinley Park crossed bats with Mokena. The fans were treated to a lot of all kinds of baseball. Tinley finished up with 15 runs and 16 hits and Mokena 13 runs and 9 hits. The game featured some fine playing and some poor. There were 24 errors in the game. Simons of Tinley kept up his batting getting 3 hits in five trips to the plate, and his mates Ambler and Siebrandt also got 3 hits each. The errors were so frequent on both sides that at times it was comical. These two teams are going to replay this game as part of a double head-

Seven Lepers Have Narrow Escape
From Death While Angling at Sea

Honolulu, Hawaii.—From the leper settlement at Kalaupapa, island of Molokai, comes a tale of heroism involving seven men in peril at sea, the desperate rescue of one who fell overboard, and the scaling of a precipitous cliff 2,000 feet high by one of their number in search of aid, after the boat had been beached in an almost inaccessible spot on the rocky shore of Molokai.

This was going on while air and surface vessels of the United States navy and ships and planes of the Interisland Steam Navigation company and Interisland Airways were searching for the missing men.

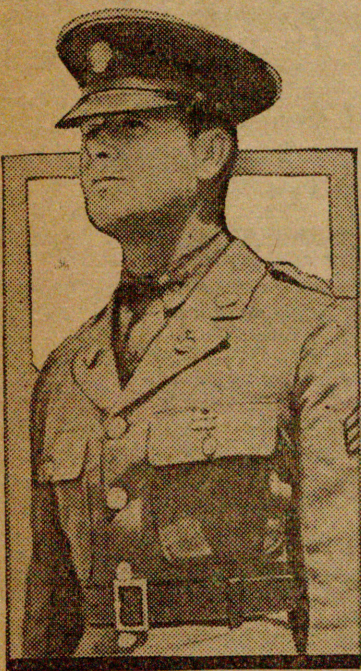

Five men left Kalaupapa to go fishing in an 18-foot sloop, temporarily rigged and without a keel. After they had been missing a few hours apprehension was felt at the settlement, and two other men set out in a 14-foot rowboat equipped with a 12-horse power outboard motor to search for them.

The sloop proved unmanageable when it encountered an unexpected strong east wind. William Kalama was washed overboard by a heavy sea and was rescued by Henry Kawewehi, who leaped into the sea from the drifting boat and placed a line around Kalama.

The sloop began to leak badly. They made no headway toward Kalaupapa. Kalama, at the helm, finally steered for the beach at Kamanawana, and by combined luck and skill struck an inlet through the reef about 20 feet wide, through which the boat was beached in a heavy surf.

The five men, one of whom could not swim, were stranded between the raging sea and the precipitous cliff, which had never been scaled.

"Best of Soldiers"

Sergt. David ("Spike") Maloney, of Battery E of the coast artillery on duty at Fort Winfield Scott, who was recently spoken of by General Summerall as being the best soldier he has ever seen in the United States army. In all the fifteen years that the sergeant has been soldiering he has never been known by any other name than "Spike," and when his name was needed for dispatches the writers had to refer to the official files, for no one knew his real name.

William Kailima and Kanekoa Punee, in the outboard motor boat, arrived about sunset and anchored about 50 yards off shore, fearing to come closer in the pounding surf.

Kailima, realizing that one of the stranded party could not swim, ran ashore himself through the surf carrying a small line, intending to fasten it to driftwood to help the party aboard.

On this lifeline the entire party reached the rescue boat, and Kailima, with all aboard, attempted to return to Kalaupapa. The overloaded boat filled with water and began to sink.

Punee also was unable to swim. He clung to the sinking boat while Paul Kaeulali and Kailima helped Kiha, the other nonswimmer, to shore. Kailima then administered artificial respiration to Kiha while the others returned to rescue Punee.

The party remained all night on the beach without food or water. In the morning Kaeulali volunteered to climb the cliff and attempt to reach the settlement overland to bring aid. After a desperate attempt he reached the top and made his way to the settlement to report to the authorities.

Meanwhile the fishing sampan Fuji Maru, Capt. K. Fujimoto, passed with Kalama.

Landing Plane on Lawn
Costs Pilot $25 Fine

Tucson, Ariz.—Landing his airplane in the yard of a sorority house and making a date with one of the girls cost Alfred A. Hurgin, Nogales, aviator, $25.

Hudgin insisted it was a forced landing, but John Dwyer, chief of police, heard about the date and declared the stunt was prearranged. He caused Hudgin's arrest under a city ordinance prohibiting the operation of motor vehicles without mufflers, and the flyer was fined $25.

The aviator wanted to take off from the sorority house yard, but the chief made him have the plane hauled outside the city limits.

Petty Fraud Is Worked in the Name of Charity

Santa Barbara, Calif.—The country has been overrun with rackets, but still another one came to light here when 300 people discovered they had been bilked out of a dollar apiece, with no prospect of a refund.

According to police, a young woman and a man, posing as charity workers, went about the city selling tickets at $1 each for a musical concert which they said would be presented for charity by a group of musicians.

POTPOURRI

Not a Rose

The tuberose is not related to the rose at all. Its name came from misuse of the adjective tuberous. Because of its extremely sweet odor it is used extensively for perfumes. Its long slender stem comes from a tuberous rootstock. It is a native of tropical America and Asia, but is also grown in this country.

THE GONE COON

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

Capt. Martin Scott, who was born on a farm in Vermont, something over one hundred years ago, enjoyed a rather unusual reputation as a marksman. It is said that his fame was so considerable throughout the state of Vermont that even the animals were aware of it.

He went out one morning, so the story goes, with his rifle, and, seeing a raccoon on the branches of a high tree, he brought his gun up to his shoulder. The coon raised his paw as a flag of truce.

"I beg your pardon, mister," said the raccoon politely; "but may I ask if your name is Scott?" "Yes," replied the captain. "Martin Scott?" still continued the animal. "Yes," replied the captain. "Captain Martin Scott?" "Yes," "Oh, then," says the animal, "I may just as well come down, for I'm a gone coon!"

I have been acquainted with Morton for forty years or more. He is a most enthusiastic hunter of all in three miles of the stranded party and saw their signals. Kailima swam out to the sampan and a member of the crew accompanied him back to the beach, with lines in their teeth. They built a raft to convey the non-swimmers and the six men reached Kalaupapa by the sampan.

They are averaging twenty miles daily, and expect to eat their Christmas dinner in New York.

sorts of financial and business coons.

He was telling me just the other day of an enterprise which he has under way which is going to make him a small fortune. He is raising peaches in Michigan or figs in Texas or peaches in Florida, or something of the sort, and is on the verge of a great financial clean-up. I heard him tell the same story ten years ago, I believe at that time, about tobacco in Tennessee.

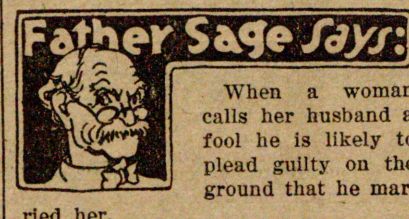

Gore is a young fellow under thirty, I should guess, but he is a sure marksman. He tackled all sorts of difficult jobs in college for the work of which he was not particularly well prepared. No matter what college course he undertook to carry, it was a gone coon when he fired at it. He proved his ability to do well any subject which he pursued. When he had graduated he tackled an examination for a professional appointment which all his friends told him he was foolish to attempt. He was too young, they said, too inexperienced, but he proved otherwise, and did himself credit. Young as he is he is now holding an executive position which few men of his age would attempt, but his aim is sure; through hard work he gets what he goes after. When he points his gun up the tree the coon might just as well say, "I will come down, for I know I am a gone coon."

STAGE COACH
TALES

By E. C. TAYLOR

The Vanderbilt of the Stage
Era

LUCIUS WITHAM STOCKTON was to the stage coach era of transportation in the United States what Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt was to the railroad era—the outstanding figure, almost the “czar,” of his time. Stockton was born in Flemington, N. J., the son of Lucius Stockton and grandson of Rev. Philip Stockton, famous as the “Revolutionary Preacher,” who was a brother of Richard Stockton, signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Little is known of his early life, but it is known that he drove stage coaches for a time, and appeared in Uniontown, Pa., lured westward by the call of the National road, and married Rebecca Moore, daughter of Daniel Moore, an old stage proprietor of Washington, Pa., before he was twenty-four years of age. They had six children. His second wife was his first cousin, Katharine Stockton, and four children were born to them.

Stockton became wealthy operating stage coaches over the famous old National road from the Atlantic seaboard to the Middle West, and was perhaps the most colorful figure of his day.

Early in his career he once raced a horse and buggy against a locomotive between Relay House and Baltimore, Md., and won the race. He drove a favorite gray horse in that contest.

Stockton was a great lover of horses, and developed his own special strains for his stage coach lines. He had a strain called the “Murat” and another called the “Winflower,” which many experts declare have never been surpassed for nerve, beauty and speed. This can never be determined, however, as the two strains have died out.

He was a familiar figure along the National road, and became known as the “speed maniac” of his day. He had a span of beautiful Winflower mares, which Hanson Willison, one of his drivers, has recorded were named “Sal” and “Bet.” He frequently drove this span from Uniontown to Wheeling, W. Va., between breakfast and tea time, stopping two or three hours at midday in Washington, Pa.

Stockton always had the hostlers add a little whisky to the water given this span to drink, and the spirited, fleet steeds became so accustomed to their “hipple” that they refused to drink unless their water had a little whisky in it.

He also frequently drove from Uniontown to Cumberland, Md., in a day, stopping at the stage coach station along the way to transact business. Also a drive from Cumberland to Hagerstown, Md., a distance of 66 miles, was an ordinary day's drive for him.

He had a private carriage, a long, open vehicle, which he called “The Flying Dutchman,” and which was famous among horsemen and sportsmen of the time.

The famous span once ran away with him, when he was driving his wife and sister over the National road. His sister clutched frantically at him, but he didn't pay any attention to her cries, and soon had the spirited team under control.

Stockton had a factory in Uniontown where nearly all of the coaches of the National Road Stage company, which he had organized and which ran nearly all competitors out of business during the heyday of the National road, were built by experts. Maj. William A. Donaldson was one of the foremen at the factory on Morgantown street.

All stage coaches of the National road days were named, mostly for famous personages of the time. Stockton had one named “John Tyler” in honor of the Vice President of the first Harrison administration. When Tyler, on the death of William Henry Harrison, succeeded to the Presidency and vetoed the United States bank bill, Stockton was very much angered. Going into the stage coach yard, soon after the veto was announced, he spied the “John Tyler” and shouted to Donaldson:

“Donaldson, can't you erase that name and substitute another one? I won't have my coaches named for a traitor.”

“Certainly I can,” Donaldson replied. “What shall the new name be?”

“Call it ‘General Harrison.’”

So the change was made. Donaldson was a Democrat, and was much amused by the incident.

Stockton died in Uniontown April 25, 1844, at “Ben Lomond,” his elaborate estate. He is buried in the cemetery at Washington, Pa., where rest many other builders of the Allegheny Mountain region.

Spider Builds Diving Bell

A spider that lives under water is an air-breathing insect like the garden variety. It can remain under water for many hours at a time and even builds its nest there and rears its young by means of air which it collects on the surface, and stores in a reservoir made of its silk.

In midwinter, among the pondweeds, it spins a delicate, flat web, an almost invisible sheet. Then it climbs a plant to the surface, to collect air. It may swim awhile on its back to entangle air in its thick hairy coat, and then smartly dive. The effect is, the air goes with it, caught by its hair, and between its eight legs.

THE MISSION TO CYPRUS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 12:25-13:12.
GOLDEN TEXT—For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth: to the Jew first, and also to the Greek.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Starts on a Great Trip.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Begins an Adventurous Journey.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Missionary Adventures in Cyprus, YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christianity at Court.

I. Barnabas and Saul Return from Jerusalem (12:25).

The Christians at Jerusalem were in need because of a famine which had come upon the world. When news of this reached the believers at Antioch, they were moved with sympathy for them, and relief was sent at the hand of Barnabas and Saul. On their return from this ministry, they were accompanied by John Mark.

II. Gifts of the Church at Antioch (v. 1).

Young as was this new religious center, it had prophets and teachers. Such are essential to right church life. In Ephesians 4: 8-12 is enumerated the gifts which when Christ ascended on high he gave to men for the perfecting of the saints unto the work of the ministry. Gifts in the Church are not for the Church itself, but to enable it to perform service for others.

III. Barnabas and Saul Sent Forth (vv. 2, 3).

This marks the beginning of foreign missions as the deliberately planned enterprise of the Church.

1. The occasion (v. 2). While the five prophets and teachers were fasting and praying, the Holy Spirit commanded them to send forth Barnabas and Saul. The work of evangelizing the world was laid so heavily upon these men that they refrained from eating in order to seek the will of God in prayer. This is the kind of fasting that has God's approval. The missionary enterprise is the index to the spirituality of a church. The emptiness of missionary treasures and the falling off of missionary candidates reveal the unspirituality of the home base.

2. The divine command (v. 2). The Holy Ghost said, “Separate me Barnabas and Saul.” The real call to Christian service comes from the Holy Spirit. The Spirit called, the Church responded by sending out those called by him. Spirit-filled Christians know the voice of the Holy Spirit. The Spirit called, and the best men which the Church at Antioch had were sent out.

3. The obedience (v. 3). After fasting and prayer, Barnabas and Saul were sent out. The men were ready to go.

4. Instant obedience was rendered. Those who have received the Spirit's call are not taken by surprise when they are commissioned by the Church. There should be no holding back on the part of the Church, nor of the workers when the Spirit calls. By the workers when the Spirit calls.

IV. Preaching the Word of God in Cyprus (vv. 4, 5).

We are not told as to why they first went to Cyprus, but we are left to infer that it was owing to the fact that Cyprus was the home of Barnabas. He was acquainted with the country and the people and could be thus assured of a respectable hearing among them. Besides, it was most natural that those who had heard the good news go first with it to their kindred and friends. Andrew first went to his brother, and the man out of whom the demons were cast was denied the pleasure of following Jesus in order that he might go and tell his kindred. As they went forth they carefully carried out their commission, for they preached the Word of God. Those who are faithful to God will preach nothing but his Word. The great need today is Spirit-called and Spirit-filled men preaching God's Word.

V. Withstood by Elymas, the Sorcerer (vv. 6-12).

Sergius Paulus, the deputy, invited Barnabas and Saul to tell him of God's Word. Elymas maliciously sought to turn his mind from the faith. He sought to bar the gospel as it entered upon its mission of converting the heathen. Paul came to the front and denounced Elymas in the most scathing terms. He called him the child of the Devil, denouncing him as full of guile and villainy, pronouncing him the enemy of all righteousness, and accusing him of perverting the right ways of the Lord. Surely a man is never more a villain than when he tries to turn a soul from God.

God Does Not Forsake Thee

Suppose that all men forsake or forget thee; God does not. His eye sees thee, his heart feels for thee, and his hand is able to deliver thee. Thou art not friendless, nor wilt thou be till the God of all consolation dies.—Charles H. Spurgeon.

The Resurrection-Life

It is the resurrection-life that is the truest as well as the highest form of life; the surest as well as the most glorious immortality; it admits of no reversal and no decay.—H. Bonar.

Few Germans Rank

as Middle Class

It is actually true today that the mass of the German people, excepting only a tiny group, belong economically to the proletarian class. The strong middle class of prewar days now differ from the working class only in its traditions, its memories and its point of view—not in income.

The tax records reveal the facts. Income tax begins on all incomes in excess of $300 a year. Among the 32,000,000 persons gainfully employed, about 23,000,000 are liable to income tax on an average income of about $400. The rest, of course, have even less.

If the middle-class is reckoned on the broadest possible basis, to include every one with an income of $600 to $9,000 a year, under which is a proletarian standard and over which is riches, it still encompasses only 10 per cent of the population as compared with 25 per cent of this class in England.

But if $4,000 is taken as a minimum comfortable middle class income—and this is reasonable, estimated by the cost of living in Germany—then there are only 77,000 people all told in this class.

Add the 30,000 rich people with incomes of more than $9,000 a year, pyramiding up to the multimillionaires, and you come to the startling conclusion that only some 100,000 people out of Germany's 64,000,000 population are really free from financial cares and enjoy a comfortable bourgeois existence.—Dorothy Thompson in the Saturday Evening Post.

Ceiling of the World

“What is the ceiling today?” This is a common question around airports, because a flying “ceiling” varies with the atmospheric density. To determine accurately the fluctuating ceiling clouds, haze and fog around airports and weather bureaus, an experiment is being conducted in Cleveland with a light beam that is virtually a tape measure.

To determine the ceiling height with this new electric tape measure, it is only necessary to focus the light beam from a light projector upon the clouds and to sight, through a special gauging instrument, the light spot thus thrown on the clouds. The optical system employed in the projector produces a phenomenon beam intensity of 1,840,000 candlepower.

Fish Story

Jimmie's sole acquaintance with fish was as a commodity in a market so when his daddy took him recently to the creek to watch some fish in their native environment Jimmie, nearly four, experienced a new sensation.

“They were taking a bath,” he explained to a grownup who questioned him about the trip.

Proof That Trout Preys
on Newly Planted Fry

The spectacle of large fish gobbling up newly planted fry in Tenaya lake in Yosemite National park recently proved to the rangers in charge of the fish planting that trout are cannibals—and also proved too much for the disposition of the rangers, who promptly disposed of the offenders. Oscar Irwin, park ranger, was in charge of the planting of a supply of steelhead fry in the upper end of the lake. After releasing the young fish the planting party noticed a large fish swimming around in the shallow water chasing four of the small fish just released from the can. Ranger Irwin waded out after the attacker with a shovel, hit it over the back, scooped it up and brought it to dry land. It proved to be a 14-inch German brown trout. A few minutes later another fish appeared in search of food, and again Irwin and his trusty shovel went to the defense of the fry. This time he brought out a 16-inch trout of the same species.

Joke on Students

Robinson D. Harley and Ward H. Bright, juniors at Rutgers university, narrowly escaped being taken to an asylum for the feeble-minded when farmers near Freehold, N. J., who saw them wearing white running trunks and nothing else, in the cold one night, reported two lunatics at large. The students had set out for a long run when an automobile with four guards and a nurse from the asylum overtook them and they

Here Are the Reasons Firestone CAN GIVE YOU EXTRA VALUES

ONLY by comparing manufacturing, construction, and distribution can you determine what is behind the price tag on the tires you are asked to buy. Price alone is never an index to value unless you know the reputation and ability of the manufacturer and what advantages he has in purchasing of raw materials, manufacturing efficiency, and distributing economies. These are the factors that determine tire value.

Read the facts at the right—then go to the Firestone Service Dealer in your community and make your own comparisons with cross sections of Firestone Tires and special brand mail order tires. See the Extra Values you get by equipping your car with Firestone Tires.

Manufacturing Efficiency

Firestone control every step in the manufacture of their products—own their own rubber preparation factory in Singapore—their own cotton fabric mills—and their own huge tire factories—the most efficient in the world. With these great advantages Firestone save millions of dollars annually, which are passed on to car owners in Extra Values.

Mail Order houses have their tires built as a part of a miscellaneous assortment of production by some manufacturer who is unknown to the public. Mail Order houses are dependent upon others for their tires.

Distributing Economy

Firestone have the most efficient and economical distributing system through Service Dealers and Service Stores. Firestone know tires must carry with them the necessary service for the economy, safety, and satisfaction of car owners. Special brand mail order tires are usually made just to sell, with limited or no facilities for servicing the car owner after the sale.

ORLAND PARK

At the meeting of the village council held Monday evening, the Orland Park Volunteer Fire Department including the fire chief were each insured for $3,000 against accident. In all 25 men were insured in Aetna Insurance Company. Mr. Scott of Palos Park wrote the policies. The fire truck was also insured in the Hartford Fire Insurance Co. Mr. Maddox residing on the Harmony Farm near Orland Park has made the village an offer of providing a connection with the water supply system on the Harmony Farm Golf Course so that in the event the water system on the Harmony would at any time be in need of village water it could be secured and on the other hand if the village pumping station was ever out of commission a water supply could be secured from the Harmony Farm. Mrs. H. Adele Cooper, sons Merrill and Floyd have returned from a delightful trip across the lake and a visit with relatives at Michigan City. Charles Zorns, aged 21 years, died in Chicago, August 19th. Funeral services were held last Friday. Burial was in the Masonic cemetery at Cedar Park. He is survived by his parents, one brother Clarence and one sister, Alice. He had been in poor health since last January. His mother is well known at Orland as formerly Miss Beck. The National Air Transport radio station which was erected on the Gee farm south of here about a year ago, is being moved to a site near Aurora this week. The reason for relocating the station is said to be that it was too far out from Chicago. This station was on a low wave and was used only for dispatching air planes of the company named. The station was known as WNAT. Ed. Rust and family have moved to Oak Lawn. Joe Rust and family of Cicero have moved to Orland Park.

Mrs. Henry Storz who was stricken with paralysis sometime ago, is in a critical condition. Two nurses are in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Beagley returned last Friday from a pleasant vacation trip to the Dells. They visited a number of the big paper mills at Neenah and Manasha, Wis. They also enjoyed a fishing trip. Mr. Beagley landed several fish weighing over five pounds apiece.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanders of Champaign are visiting at the home of their son Rev. Paul Sanders and family.

Police magistrate Sherman Knox who has been having a severe siege of sciatica is somewhat improved.

In order to check the epidemic of whooping cough in Orland Park, the homes in which whooping cough cases have been reported, are being quarantined.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Yunker visited in Joliet Monday.

Construction work has been begun on the new road house which Judge Raschke is erecting at the corner of Keane avenue and 159th st.

Wolf Road south of Orland Park will remain closed for some time. A bridge near the Chas. Doctor farm settled considerably and has to be replaced. Some dredging work is also being done on the stream.

Don't forget the date, Tuesday September 1st, as the Ladies Guild of the Orland Park M. E. church will give a coffee in the church basement.

Richard David Krause, son of Mr. Mrs. D. Krause was christened in their home Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by Rev. G. Gerhold of the St. Peter Evangelical church. The sponsors were Dorothy and Clarence Schroth of Frankfort.

Florence Weichbrodt's Sunday School class of the St. Peter Evangelical church held their class picnic Wednesday afternoon in the Wallingford Grove on Route 44. Games were played and lunch was served. All reported a good time. The members of the class are Marietta Rahm, Louise Krause, Elvira Hossbach, Alice Wishever, Dorothy Buch, Merle Genesee, Louise Scheer, Ella Marie Pfeiffer, Alvira Erickson, Richard Knater, Robert Mitchell, Raymond Smith.

Mrs. John Schroeder of New Lenox township is in the Silver Cross hospital for treatments.

Myrtle Fink, daughter of Mrs. Mamie Fink and Elmer Arvidson of Joliet were quietly married in Joliet August 15th. They are making their home in Joliet.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fuss and daughter Lolita, Clarence Pieper, Edith and Gertrude Pearson and Marjorie Kane, all of Joliet, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Unland and children of Chicago Heights, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Lankenau, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cheney, Eva Jean Pfaff, Harold and Walter Cheney, Orville Schroeder and Burton Breidert all of Frankfort motored last Sunday to Shady Beach, Cedar Lake, Indiana and spent the day there.

The Chicago Heights indoor baseball team played the Frankfort ball team here Monday evening. The score was Chicago Heights 19, Frankfort, 1.

The Frankfort baseball team played Beecher last Sunday at Beecher. The score was Frankfort 6, Beecher 12. Next Sunday, August 30 Frankfort plays Matteson at Matteson.

Rev. and Mrs. G. Gerholdt and family returned home from Iowa where they spent several days.

Mrs. John Luhring who has been ill, is improving.

Big Auto Race at Roby Speedway, Sunday, Aug. 30

The line-up of low powerful racing cars, their motors barking impatiently, grim faced, goggle-eyed drivers whose names are by-words of the racing world, anxious mechanics giving their last inspection to motors already mechanically perfect, the fastest mile track in the world expected, and thousands—then the starters flag and they are off! Breath-taking turns on the curves, record breaking dashes on the straightaway and perhaps a hasty trip to the pits where helpers work with amazing swiftness to send the crippled car on its way again. Lap after lap as the racers tear on toward the final goal.

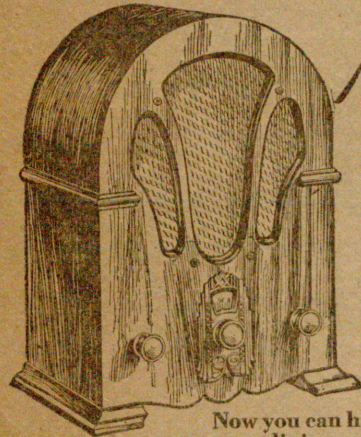

That is just a suggestion of the thrills that are in prospect for the thousands of speed racing fans in the Chicago area who will attend the 100 Mile A. A. A. Automobile Race on Sunday afternoon at the Roby-Chicago Speedway located near Hammond on Indianapolis Boulevard at 108th Street.

The races are scheduled to start promptly at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Qualifying trials will be run at 10 o'clock in the morning of the same day. The fans will recall the thrilling century grind in the spring.

Among the great stars who will appear are, "Shorty" Cantlon, last year's second place winner in the triple 'A' point Championship for 1930. Cantlon is exceptionally well known in the Chicago district because of his thrilling driving in the outlaw days. Thousands of his admirers are expected at the track just to see the little pilot perform.

Wilbur Shaw who is another idol of the fans, has probably won more dirt track events than any other driver living today. He also placed fourth in the famous Hoosier Speedway Classic and is a favorite in Sunday's event. Sam Ross, another veteran of the speedways, Chet Miller, winner of tenth in 1931 Grand Prix, Eugene Haustein, who qualified a Ford at 112 miles per hour, Johnny Jenkins, who will drive the famous international DeBaise Special, Gus Schrader, Bryan Saulpaugh, and twenty other drivers are entered. The twelve fastest in the qualifying trials the morning of the race will be allowed to start in the century grind.

TINLEY PARK

P. T. A. NEWS

By Mrs. Ruth Freitag

The first regular meeting of the Tinley Park P. T. A. will be held the first Friday in Sept. in the village hall at 1:30 p. m. Everyone welcome.

Mrs. F. A. Harper has returned from her vacation spent at Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Miss Laura Stehl who has been clerking in the Vogt Department store, is spending a week's vacation in Indiana with relatives.

A number of Tinley Park students are preparing to enter the Morgan Park, Tilden and the Calumet high schools.

FALL MILLINERY ON SALE

I have just received a very attractive line of fall millinery in all the latest modes and shades for Ladies, Misses and Children, including the popular felt hats. Prices range from $1.50 and up. Come in and select your new fall hat.

Miss H. Kennedy, Tinley Park, Ill.

Mrs. George Hartman is ill.

George Hartman and his brother-in-law, Wm. Marquardt have returned from a trip to Minnesota. The report is they figured in an auto accident while on the trip.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Habenicht, son and daughter have returned from a trip to Minnesota.

Quite a number of Tinley Park folks attended the flower show at the Mokena school given by the Mokena Garden Club Tuesday afternoon and evening.

Miss Louise Kennedy was injured the forepart of the week in a rather peculiar accident. She slipped on a floor at the Harper home and in trying to avoid falling her hand came in contact with a framed picture. The glass broke and cut her thumb quite severely.

Work on assembling the electric flashers for the depot crossing of the Rock Island is going steadily ahead. It is expected that the flashers will be in operation within a week or so.

Christ Andres and J. C. Andres returned Sunday from a trip to Overton and other Nebraska and western points.

Mrs. Jennie Klepper had the misfortune of tripping over a lawn mower in her yard and breaking the left elbow the forepart of the week.

A very large number of people attended the funeral services held in the Zion Lutheran church Saturday afternoon for the late Henry Fastedt.

A special meeting of the Woman's Community Club was held in the home of the president, Mrs. Frank Kohlhaugen Tuesday evening. Refreshments were served.

The Ladies of the Second M. E. church of Green Garden will hold their annual chicken supper in the church parlors on September 22nd.

A number of ladies from here visited the Flower Show held in Mokena Tuesday afternoon and evening. Rev. Gerhold and daughters Hilda and Esther, Mrs. Frank Marti and Mrs. Wm. Wischover attended the Sunday school convention held in Kankakee Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Krusemark entertained in their home, Mrs. H. C. Klepper and Mr. Krusemark's sister, Mrs. Harry Shilling of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lankenau visited with Mrs. Adam Hill in Monee last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Waldvogel and family were guests last Sunday with Mrs.

WORTH

The Worth baseball team, after having lost three straight games, forgot the past and won both games of a double header at Worth last Sunday.

In the first game Franklin Russert easily pitched Worth to a 16 to 5 victory over the Blue Island Orioles and in the nightcap Edwin Teason, stellar pitching ace for Worth, hurled his mates to a 6 to 1 win over Chicago Ridge.

In the second game, Ray Miller's triple in the sixth inning, with bases loaded, and the score tied one and one, was the main factor in Worth's victory.

The entertainment presented at Worth Community church last Friday night, which consisted of four one-act plays, staged under the direction of Electa Jones, pleased all concerned. Margurite Jackman of Delaware, Ohio, a guest player who took a part in three plays, was exceptionally good in her interpretations of her various roles. G. Chester Jones had a part in each of the plays, in his performance lived to the expectation of the audience many who were there had seen him perform before and knew his capabilities. The supporting casts in the plays were good, all of which led to the success of the performance. The same program was also presented at the Orland Park M. E. ch. Wednesday evening, August 26th, with the same casts participating.

Many people of Worth will buy coal from a source this winter, namely that the Morgan Park Coal and Mial Co., who have purchased from William Little the Worth Coal and Material Co. They have already taken possession and are located in Little's former office and coal which is on Depot street and Wabash tracks.

Lillian, year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Beck, who underwent an operation at the Burnside hospital some time ago, is now getting along nicely.

NOTICE TO ALL CONCERNED

I will not be responsible for any bills contracted by the Worth Coal and Material Company on and after this date.

Signed: WILLIAM LITTLE

MOKENA

Miss Ethel Johnson, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Johnson became the bride of Wayne Edward McCleery, son of Mr. and Mrs. John McCleery of Leland, at 4 p. m. August 19th. The service was performed at the First Lutheran church, with Rev. E. W. Magnusson officiating.

A program of lovely nuptial music was played by Miss Emelie Burnham, preceding the service.

Just preceding the service, Miss Burnham played Nevin's "Venetian Love Song" and "I Love You Truly."

The bridal party entered to the strains of the Wedding March from Lohengrin.

The bride who entered on the arm of her father, wore a dress of yellow chiffon with horsehair hat to match and carried a shower bouquet of Taliman roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Beatrice Skoglund, who attended her, wore green chiffon and carried Taliman roses. Mr. McCleery was attended by Ray Grant, as best man.

During the ceremony, MacDowell's "To A Wild Rose" was softly played. Following the reading of the mar-

Bi-Centennial
Medal Selected

The official George Washington Commemorative Medal, to be used in connection with the celebration of the Two Hundredth Anniversary of the Birth of the First President in 1932, has been officially selected by the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

The winning design was submitted by Mrs. Laura Gardin Fraser, well-known sculptor of New York. The front or the obverse side, features the head of Washington; the reverse side shows a symbolic figure of Liberty and the inscription "Proclaim Liberty Throughout the Land."

The medal will be used by the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission as a prize for the winners of oratorical and essay contests in schools and colleges, and it will also be the official reward for meritorious work in connection with the nine-months, world-wide celebration of George Washington's birth in 1932. Only contributions of the highest distinction will merit this reward.

A STORY OF PRIVATE INITIATIVE AND LOCAL CAPITAL

Chapter XI

LESSONS IN LIGHTING

YOUR home fired for electricity. You screw lamp to empty sockets. You click a switch—there is light. For reading and cooking, sewing and entertaining friends. For any. It seems very easy.

As a matter of fact, lighting a home—lighting it right is a complicated matter that requires care and study.

Remember when the first lighting fixtures looked like . . . thin pipe hanging down from the ceiling with crossbar and its unshaded lights spring out of each end? It was the old gas are wired—and people admired it in spite of its ugliness and its glare because it was so convenient.

Today, every one knows that such lighting is bad. But many of are not quite sure of what lighting is good here are right fixtures and wrong fixtures selected. Choice of portable lamps makes difference. So does the size of light bulbs. These are problems that cannot be solved offhand.

Because the art of lighting a home properly is so new, because lighting technique is constantly being improved, the Public Service Company has developed a Home Lighting Department to serve customers. In charge is a home lighting specialist. She is demonstrating to homemakers in northern Illinois the important fact that lighting can do more than illuminate—it can also decorate.

The Company offers a series of illustrated lectures to interested women's organizations. The programs present the lighting and wiring requirements of every room in the house—explain why eyes have to work overtime if light is inadequate or too bright.

When "indirect lighting lamps" introduced a new type of shadowless illumination, the Company's home lighting specialist hurried the news to her audiences. She told them about flat cords that run under rugs without making humps, about floor plugs that slip into outlets more conveniently, about decorating tables for children's parties with Christmas tree lights. . . . Last winter in a series of classes, she helped 7,000 women design and make lamp shades for their homes.

The Home Lighting Department's mail is full of questions like these: "Are overhead fixtures out of style?" "Where can I buy a lighted house number?" "How can I clean parchment lamp shades?" "What fixtures do you suggest for a colonial type house?"

No charge is made for any of these services the Home Lighting Department renders. The Public Service Company feels a definite obligation to its customers in helping them make the best possible use of the service they receive. It welcomes this opportunity of contributing to the art of better living in northern Illinois homes.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY OF NORTHERN ILLINOIS

This is the eleventh series of stories chronicling the development of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois. The service it is bringing to the area into which Chicago is growing. Copies of previous chapters will be mailed you if you will write the Company, 72 West Adams Street, Chicago.

Construction on $6,500 of road work has been postponed until next year. The announcement came from Director Cleveland of Department of public works after the board created by the "prevailing wage act" adjourned its initial session. The appeal board consists of George C. Ottens of West Chicago, Edward of Rockford, and H. W. Han of Peoria.

In the contest conducted by the Illinois department of agriculture, five White Leghorn hens, owned by J. A. Hanson, Corvallis, Oregon, won the cup denoting the prize of peace of all the hens in the Meridian class, competing for egg production records. The cup for best pen record in the American, (sic) and English classes was awarded Freeman's Red farm, Middleboro, five Rhode Island Reds being winners.

State and federal officials leaving from Harrisburg will total Union Hardin, Pope, Saline, Jack Union and Alexander counties where federal government is planning to establish the first two national units in Illinois. Conferences were held with officers of civic organizations and private citizens regarding desirability of establishing these proposed national forest units. Report of the committee's findings will be made to Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, and the federal officials will report Washington.

Illinois peaches are finer year than ever before. If you like them, buy some of them and use them in every possible way that peaches can be used at this time of the year. S. E. Pierson, director of the department of agriculture, is conducting a special campaign in order to sell the peach crop. The Illinois peach of commerce, with J. Paul Clay, president, is also active in helping sell the Illinois peach crop. A. E. Per, general manager of the Illinois growers' exchange, Centralia, F. H. Simpson of the F. H. Simpson company, Flora, Ill., are both very active in helping to dispose of the peach crop now ready for market. Your peaches now and ask for oils peaches.

Buell Brake, Mt. Sterling, recently announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for secretary of state, has issued a call to a meeting of the Democrats from the counties of the old twentieth congressional district to be held at Joplin, August 15. He is state rail committeeman from that district. Thomas Donovan, chairman of the state central committee, has been invited to appear on the program.

One of the most unique and usually interesting displays at the state fair will be the exhibit on non-photography in bringing together in a single visual unit a mass of scientific knowledge relating to the influence of diet on physical and mental health. This exhibit will be on the balcony of the exposition building along with the other equipment of the department of health which covers 6,000 square feet of floor space.

Lewis Vogel, chief clerk of index department in the office secretary of State William J. Strickland, is mailing out the initial copies of the 1931 session laws to judges throughout the state. Later copies will be sent to state's attorneys, members of the legislature, county officials and then will be available to the public. The book includes 447 bills were enacted into law by the fifteenth general assembly.

Dr. and Mrs. Andy Hall received word that their son, Wilford Hall, has been tendered three-year fellowship for advanced study and practical experience in surgery and medicine at the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., to become effective January 1, 1932. Dr. Wilford Hall is now a surgeon in the United States army with rank of captain stationed at Spokane, Wash.

Illinois, ranking third in her sister states in consumption of wood products, is increasing vigilance in protecting the forests concentrated efforts are being made on five major tasks: prevention of forest fires, reforestation of wastelands, dissemination of forestry information, cooperation with agencies interested in forestry, and acquisition of state forests.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson gave the principal address on the program arranged for the dedication of the hard road, at the opening of the 160, held at Alhambra, August 16. The program opening at eleven o'clock in the morning.

When the registrars closed for the better baby contest at the state fair, the names of one thousand children were listed including three families with children each, eight pairs of twins and 379 boys.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has announced the re-appointment of the members of the deep waterway commission. The only change made was the appointment of Representative James J. McVicker of Chicago, to succeed Charles H. Weber, also of Chicago, former representative. The other members are State Senators Martin Bailey, Danville, and Harry Wilson, Pinckneyville; Representative G. J. Johnson, Paxton; Arthur Meeker, Chicago; William Nelson Pelouse, Chicago; William G. Evans, Chicago; William D. Heise, Joliet, and William K. Northam, Evanston.

At the close of July, state and county highway systems of Illinois were employing 7,500 men. Progress of new work during August has been curbed due to lack of agreement over the prevailing wage scale.

The Illinois state civil service commission has announced unannounced examinations to be conducted September 15 for eleven classes of employment, principally professional at the state institutions. Assembled examinations will be held September 14, 15, 16 and 19 at several Illinois cities. The classes of employment are: assistant physician, assistant psychiatrist, dentist, domestic science teacher, hydrotherapist, institution librarian, pharmacist, physician, qualified nurse, supervising nurse and tinner.

Any Illinois child from the age of six months to twelve years may receive a complete physical examination, without charge, at the hands of osteopathic physicians at the osteopathic child welfare booth at the state fair beginning Monday morning, August 24. Pre-school children will also undergo mental tests.

A giant walnut tree, said by experts to be four hundred years old, has been sold by James D. Smith in Island Grove township, near New Berlin, to the Danville Lumber company for $650. It is their intention to move the tree intact, to be exhibited at the 1933 world's fair as a model walnut tree of America. The tree is four feet in diameter at the trunk, which stands with fine poise and symmetry and with the lowest limbs 50 feet from the ground. The tree is approximately 125 feet high.

During the recent convention of the Elks of Illinois, a pilgrimage was made to the tomb of Abraham Lincoln, a wreath being placed on the tomb and a brief tribute paid to America's Civil War president in an address by John R. Coen, grand exalted ruler. Gov. Louis L. Emmerson spoke before one of the sessions and paid high tribute to the Elks as pioneers in the task of restoring crippled children to useful lives.

Charles A. Stevens, head of the famous Chicago hotel that bears his name, is among the early ones to list entries in the milk goat exhibition to be held at the state fair, at Springfield, and will probably have the largest single entry in the show, as pen reservations for 70 prize specimens have been made.

One hundred books have been chosen by a representative group of Americans as those which should be read by every American between the ages of twenty and forty-five. The books are arranged in the order of their popularity and include recent writers as well as the standard authors. These books will be on display at the exhibit of the Library Extension division at the 1931 Illinois state fair. A copy of the list may be obtained at the state fair booth or at their office in the Centennial building.

Congressman William E. Hull, of Peoria, has issued the first of his series of four letters in regard to conditions in Sweden as he found them during his recent visit, he having toured the country beginning at Gothenburg and going as far north as Falun, then across the country to Gavle and thence to Stockholm. His letter is given over mainly to discussion of the method of liquor control used in that country, which Congressman Hull considers superior to the methods used in the United States.

The Illinois Farmers' Institute headquarters for the 1931 state fair will be in the old textiles and art building, near the southeast corner of the grounds, instead of in a tent on machinery field, which served the purpose for several years past.

Mayor Herbert E. Clayton, of Morris, has announced his candidacy for the governorship nomination on the Republican ticket next year, giving his platform as including "legalized light wines and beer, payment of bonus balance to World War veterans, regulation of bus and truck transportation, payments to ex-service men of compensation at home equal to that received while hospitalized, higher wages and lower taxes."

Roy R. Wagner, who had been employed in the auditor's office in the state house for eight years, died August 4, following an operation for appendicitis. Interment was made in East Side cemetery, Geneva.

In a speech before a recent meeting of the Springfield Rotary club, Representative D. Logan Giffin, in telling of the tax problems to be solved, urged a system which would equalize the burden among the taxpayers and favored a change in the present state tax system.

As we were leaving the widowed mother of a missing soldier, her only son, came up in great distress and told M. Clemenceau of her sorrow. He spoke tenderly of her patriotic sacrifice, put his arm gently around her and kissed her cheeks, mingling his tears with hers. The pathos of this touched every heart.

As General Foch and the others were not arriving until later, M. Clemenceau and I, driving together, accompanied by Generals Wirbel and Ragneneau in a separate automobile, went to the headquarters of the Eighty-third division, Major General Glenn commanding, which was billeted at Montigny, not far from Chaumont. We fell to discussing the probable situation of the various allied countries and their relative standing after the war. M. Clemenceau went to some length in his conjectures.

Thought Britain Finished.
"Great Britain is finished and in my opinion she has seen the zenith of her glory," he said.

"What makes you think so, Mr. Prime Minister?" I asked.
"First of all," he replied, "the immense drain of the war will make it impossible for her to retain commercial supremacy, and, second, the experience of her colonial troops in this war will make their people more independent and she will lose her control over them."

I could not agree with M. Clemenceau's view and said: "Mr. Prime Minister, I think you are mistaken about the British, and I believe we shall see her fully recover from the effects of the war."

Continuing, I asked: "What about France's future?"

"Ah! She will once more be the dominant power in Europe," he replied. "But you do not mention Germany," I reminded him.

He replied: "The Germans are a great people, but Germany will not regain her prestige and her influence for generations."

Discuss Troop Shipments.

Shortly after our return to Chaumont, Generals Foch and Weygand arrived and after lunch we all went into conference. The continuation of shipments up to one hundred divisions, as already recommended by the prime ministers, Lloyd George, Clemenceau, and Orlando, formed the basis of French argument.

The whole subject was thoroughly discussed, and, considering the then shortage of man power claimed by the French and British, to say nothing of the possible increase of the German armies from Russian sources, the main question was to get over as many Americans as possible. It was finally agreed that we should propose an eighty-division program to be completed by April, 1919, and add to it the larger program of one hundred divisions to be completed by July, 1919.

CHAPTER XLVIII

Hospitalization and completion of three corps headquarters and staff organizations occupied my attention the last week of June, 1918.

Twelve of our divisions were then either in line or in reserve behind the French, five were in training in rear of the British army. Of those with the French, seven were concentrated in the vicinity of Villers-Cotterets and Chateau-Thierry, between the French front and Paris.

The British seemed to think the French unduly nervous about the safety of Paris, and that Foch was holding a greater proportion of American troops behind the French lines than necessary. They believed there was a strong probability of another attack against their front, and felt General Foch was not paying enough attention to their situation. However, they probably did not realize that a counteroffensive was contemplated on this front should the occasion present itself.

Corps Headquarters Organized.

The First corps headquarters, organized in January under Maj. Gen. Hunter Liggett, with Col. Malin Craig as chief of staff, had become a smoothly working machine ready for active service anywhere, but events had moved so swiftly there had been no opportunity for the assembly of divisions. With the increasing size of our army it was evident that a greater number of divisions would be able to take part in operations at earlier dates than we had thought possible. Consequently, the organization of the Second, Third and Fourth corps headquarters was at once completed.

The Second corps, Maj. Gen. George Read commanding, with Col. George Simonds as chief of staff, and a limited number of staff officers, was charged with matters of administration and command pertaining to the divisions behind the British front. The Third corps, temporarily under Maj. Gen. William M. Wright, Col. Alfred Bjornstad, chief of staff, continued to supervise training of divisions serving in the Vosges area. The Fourth corps was temporarily under the corps chief of staff, Col. Stuart Heintzelman, with headquarters at Toul. By the actual constitution of these corps they were expected soon to become efficient enough to handle units in operations.

French Hospitals Deficient.

As to hospitals, when our troops became suddenly engaged in the Chateau-Thierry region we had to rely largely upon the assistance of the French to care for our wounded. Although they had given us every assurance that hospital arrangements for those operations would be complete, and without question did their best, it was only through the mobile hospitals we had organized that we were able to give our casualties proper attention.

In extension of the French failure to take care of our casualties properly it must be said that when the Germans swept over the Chemin des Dames to Chateau-Thierry the French lost 45,000 beds, included in some of their best equipped hospitals. We had no hospitals on that front and with limited transportation found it difficult to supplement the scant French facilities. In fact, the situation as to hospital accommodations for our troops was about to reach a critical stage.

In this connection a cable was actually submitted by Mr. Casper Whitney from the New York Tribune which was scathing in its denunciation of our medical department. The censor immediately informed the medical representatives at my headquarters, and General Ireland, the chief surgeon, requested an investigation, which was at once carried out by the chief of the inspector general's corps, General

Not Afraid of Gas.

Brewster. Mr. Whitney was asked to be present at all the hearings, and when the actual facts were brought out, showing the efficiency of the medical department, he was most apologetic and thereafter was an enthusiastic supporter of the wisdom of the censorship.

Fourth of July Observance.

The Fourth of July found me in Chaumont. The French people there never missed an opportunity to show their pleasure at having us in their midst and their appreciation of our aid to the cause. The principal ceremony of the day was a reception to the officers of my headquarters by the local French officials, both civic and military, and the prominent citizens at the Hotel de Ville. This was an altogether delightful social gathering, including a series of suitable speeches.

The spirit of fraternity that prevailed made it easy to respond. In fact, on this, as often on similar occasions, I found myself almost as enthusiastic as the French speaker, though perhaps less content with my effort.

The allies elsewhere did not forget that it was our Independence day, and messages came from Clemenceau, Foch and Haig and many others from all over France.

Yanks in Hamel Attack.

Regardless of the distinct understanding that our troops behind the British front were there for training and were not to be used except in an emergency, the British made continuous effort to get them into their lines.

They planned an attack by the Australians for the Fourth of July and requested Maj. Gen. George Read, commander of the Second corps then still in training, to permit some of the troops of the Thirty-third division to take part.

At first the British suggested four companies, but later they wanted the number increased to ten. As the use of Americans at this time was directly contrary to the arrangement, naturally it did not meet with my approval.

Having learned that such a combined attack was planned, I spoke to Marshal Haig about it when I saw him in Paris July 3, and he entirely agreed with my point of view. It seems that General Read, afterward, in accordance with my instructions, told General Rawlinson that I did not want partly trained troops to participate. However, our troops had by this time become fully committed to it. Although the British chief of staff had consented to leave our troops out, when he learned from Rawlinson that it would compel them to defer the operation, he informed Read that no change could be made without orders from Field Marshal Haig, who, he said, could not be reached, and so the attack was carried out, as I learned the next day.

The fact that General Read and his officers and men were keen to get into the battle went far to excuse him. It seems needless to add also that the splendid behavior of the troops in the operation was a decided argument in favor of leniency. This division also afterward displayed the same eagerness to get at the enemy in several hard-fought engagements during the trying days of the Meuse-Argonne.

CHAPTER XLIX

A number of our divisions were quite prepared to engage in any contemplated offensive and their location at the moment lent hope for the early formation of one and probably two entire corps of Americans.

Liggett's First corps had taken its place in line July 4, with the Second division (Harbord), relieved on the 10th by the Twenty-sixth (Edwards), and a French division under its direction. The corps staff had been shaken down to the routine of its work and had become in every respect an efficient group, performing its functions with the confidence and precision worthy of the more experienced staffs of the allied armies.

During an inspection trip July 12 to the headquarters of the First corps I had lunch with General Harbord at Nanteuil-sur-Marne, where his division was resting. He told of a marine in his division who had captured seventy-five German prisoners single-handed.

Germans Attack Again.

Referring again to my diary: Chaumont, Wednesday, July 17, 1918.—Another German attack broke Monday. Our Forty-second, part of the Twenty-eighth and the Third, became engaged. The latter counterattacked and captured 600 prisoners. Advised Foch that the Thirty-second and Twenty-ninth divisions are available at once.

Five other divisions have been placed at his disposal. Situation yesterday more favorable for allies. General Bullard assigned to Third corps and General Wright to Fifth.

The intelligence services of all the allied armies had been exerting every endeavor to discover the enemy's plans, with the result that for some days it appeared almost certain that his next move would be directed toward the southeast, on the right and left of Rheims. On the evening of July 14 a French raiding party from General Gouraud's Fourth army, then holding that part of the line including Rheims, luckily captured prisoners who confirmed this belief and who gave the exact hour fixed for the attack, which they said was to take place the following morning.

Our Third division, still in line south of the Marne, faced the enemy between Jaulgonne and Chateau-Thierry, and the Twenty-sixth, which, as we have seen, had relieved the Second, held a sector between Torcy and Vaux. Infantry elements of the Twenty-eighth were south of the Marne, serving with the two French divisions on either side of the Third; the entire Forty-second occupied a support position behind Gouraud's front; the First division was north of Meaux, and the Second and Fourth were in reserve near Chateau-Thierry.

Surprise for the Enemy.

The German offensive was launched on the early morning of July 15, as expected, but it was met with a surprise barrage put down by General Gouraud's artillery half an hour before the start. The Germans' attack formations were thrown into confusion and their force seriously weakened to begin with. By evening, thanks to the strong resistance they encountered, the situation in that immediate sector was not unfavorable.

Our Forty-second division became engaged and sustained relatively heavy losses. Its conduct on the first and succeeding days brought high praise from the French army commander. Farther west the enemy crossed the Marne, penetrating in one place as far as five miles. He struck our Third division, which was posted along the river, in a determined attempt to force a crossing between Mezy and Varennes, and the fighting became intense, some units of the Thirtieth and Thirty-eighth regiments holding this front being forced back. The stubbornness of their resistance, however, broke up the attack as a whole, and the Germans retired to the north bank.

Thirty-eighth Distinguishes Itself.

On this occasion a single regiment of the Third division (Col. U. G. McAlexander's Thirty-eighth) wrote one of the most brilliant pages in our military annals. It prevented the crossing at certain points on its front, while on either flank the Germans who had gained a footing pressed forward. Our men, firing in three directions, met the German attack with counterattacks at critical points, and succeeded in throwing two German divisions into complete confusion.

Men from three different enemy divisions were captured by the Third in the fighting of this day. By noon of the sixteenth the attacks against its line came to a halt.

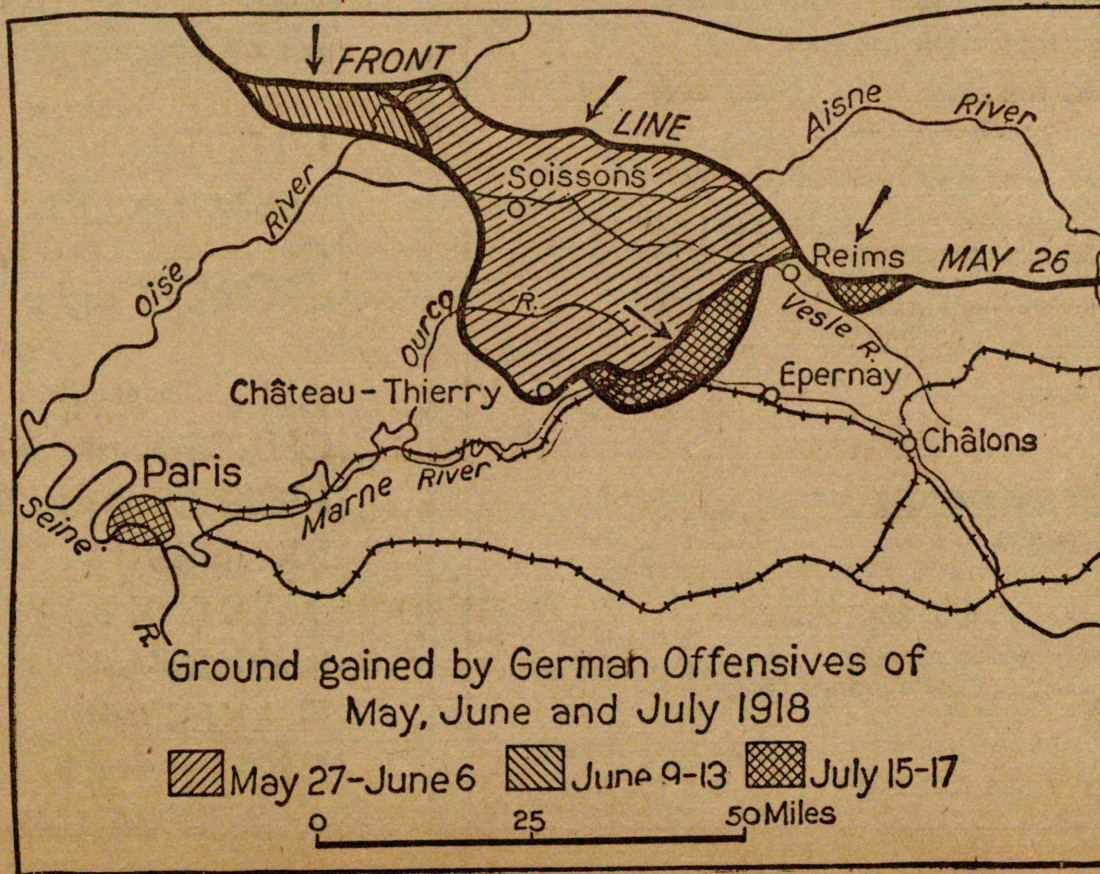

The Germans were stopped to the east of Rheims by Gouraud's Fourth army with but slight gains, while to the southwest they got across the Marne and made some progress toward Epernay. The failure of the attack in Champagne and the relatively slight gains to which the Germans were held to the west of Rheims on the first day materially heartened the allies.

Although there were some ten divisions of the enemy remaining south of the Marne, the very evident conclusion, judging from the results of the following two days and the losses he had suffered, was that he would be unable to continue the offensive.

Now that the allied armies were no longer in jeopardy it seemed opportune to push the formation of our own army near Chateau-Thierry for use against the Marne salient in the counteroffensive I had frequently urged. The outlook for the allies had changed materially since the crisis of early June. The enemy had been held in his most recent attacks and his losses were presumably very great.

He was losing the advantage of numbers and his superiority was passing.

Mokena-Tinley Game

Draws Big Crowd

er on Sept. 6th and all are planning to show the fans that both teams can play better ball than last week.

Next Sunday August 30th a bargain bill be played. A strong team from Lansing, Ill., will play the first game which will be called at 1 p. m.
 sharp. Washington Heights will turn the opposition in the second encounter which will follow the first game.

Lansing is reported to be a very strong team and are set on making Tinley take the count while Washington Heights has won 17 and lost 3 so there should be some fine balplayed. Come early and root for the home team. We need your support. The same prices will prevail.

The following games are scheduled; Sept. 6 1 p. m., Mokena; 3 p. m.
 Chicago Heights. Sept. 7 1 p. m.
 Oak Forest; 3 p. m. Frankfort. Sept.
 13 3 p. m. Beverly Stars.

CAR TIPS OVER;

NO ONE HURT

A Ford car loaded with young people returning from a party, was wrecked Wednesday night on the highway near the Wm. Lauffer farm northeast of Mokena when the car hit some loose gravel in the road and upset. No one was hurt. The car was quite badly wrecked.

Depression Does

Not Affect Use of Electrical Current

In spite of generally depressed business conditions the relative amount of electricity used in northern Illinois towns during the first half of this year as compared with the same period last year is apparently considerably higher than in similar areas elsewhere in the country. This may be inferred from recent figures released by the National Electric Light Association and contrasted with corresponding figures of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, according to L.
 C. Stephens, the local district manager.

Further evidence of continued development in the northern Illinois territory served by the Public Service Company, according to Mr.
 Saephens, is found in the fact that both the total number of customers and total electric connected load at the end of June 1931, are ahead of the total at the beginning of the year.

Cow Sale Brings

Good Prices

The cow sale held by Muff & Krapp near Matteson Tuesday was well attended. Twenty-eight head of cattle were sold, the top notch price being $68. Edw. Schmaedeke of Orland Park was the auctioneer.

MAY OPEN NEW STATION

ON ROCK ISLAND

The McIntosh Realty Co., is opening a sub-division east of New Lenox on both sides of the Rock Island railroad. It is understood that if 50 chicken farms are opened, a railroad station will be located in the sub-division. So far, only two chicken farms have been established in this sub-division.

Fresh Dairy Cow Auction Tuesday, Sept. 1, '31

Commencing at 1:30 p. m. Central Standard Time
 Sale will be held at the Folker's Bros. Barn, located along N. Y. C. R. R. tracks, Frankfort, Illinois.
 25 JERSEY AND GUERNSEY COWS—Consisting of 20 cows fresh with calf at foot and 5 close up springers. Ages 2 to 6 years old. Good size, type and conformation. Large bags and teats. TB. tested and guaranteed sound. These cows come from one of the greatest dairy cow sections in the United States.
 These cows come from an accredited county.

VERY RICH IN BUTTERFAT TEST—These cows are from a section of the country where they are particularly noted for their rich test. If you are having trouble with your test do not miss this sale as these JERSEYS and GUERNSEYS will sure help bring up your test.

Cows are gentle and will be sold to the halter. Ladies especially invited to attend this sale. Parties from a distance may have cows kept until next day and loaded on board cars or in your trucks free of charge. Cows may be seen at the Folker's Bros.
 Barn, Frankfort two days before sale.

Remember the date and hour, Tuesday, September 1, 1:30 p.
 m. Central Standard Time, Folker's Bros. Barn, Frankfort, Ill.
